

Rushing British Troops to France to Assist in Holding Germans

British, French Troops Withdraw From Norway

King Haakon and Norwegian Government Arrive in Britain. Part of Norwegian Forces Withdrawn To Be Re-Formed For Action on Other Fronts. Port Facilities at Narvik Demolished To Stop Nazis Using It For Ore Shipping.

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer.
LONDON, June 10. — (C.P. Cable)—Britain and France have evacuated Narvik and northern Norway while British are rushing troops to France to assist the French in holding the German drive to Paris.
King Haakon and the Norwegian government have arrived in Britain and part of the Norwegian armed forces have been withdrawn from Norway to be re-formed for action on other fronts.
It was indicated that port facilities at Narvik have been demolished, preventing the Germans using it for ore shipping.
Fresh Troops Arrive in France.
Meanwhile, in a message to Premier Reynaud, Prime Minister Churchill announced that "the Royal Air Force has been continually engaged over the battlefields and within the last few days fresh British troops have landed in France to take their place with those already engaged in the common struggle, whilst further extensive reinforcements are being rapidly organized and will shortly be available."

A military spokesman, referring to the big battle on the Somme and Aisne, said "the situation is obviously of increasing difficulty."
He cautioned against undue optimism and announced that German tanks have reached the Seine. Britain pressed her efforts to insure her own safety against invasion and waited anxiously for definite news from the Continent where the Royal Air Force and Tommies are heavily engaged in the critical "Battle of France."

Tommies Come Home With French Allies After "Hell in Flanders"

Back from the "hell in paradise" that was spring 1940 in Flanders, these Tommies and poilus alike, allies in the heroic retreat from the jaws of the Nazi trap, show scars of the battle. The wounded Tommy at left still can smile and give "thumbs up." The poignant, soul-scarred expression on poilus at right vividly describes the tragedy battle etched in their lives.

Cardinal Says Hitler Is "The Felony of Evil"

Quebec Archbishop Describes Fuehrer as a "Persecuting and Sacrilegious Potentate."

QUEBEC, June 9. — (C.P.) — Cardinal Rodrigue Villeneuve, in the current issue of Le Semaine Religieuse, archdiocese weekly, describes Adolf Hitler as representing "the felony, the irreligion and the very organization of evil."
The cardinal, Roman Catholic archbishop of Quebec, said Hitler is a "persecuting and sacrilegious potentate," who is "unmindful of Divine prescriptions."
"Deaf to the reprehensions of the common father of Christianity, he has invaded with his battalions of iron the vast territories of neighboring nations," said Cardinal Villeneuve. "He has put the countries to fire and to blood. He has crushed as base insects not only valiant armies, gathered to protect their land and that of their oppressed parents, but even children, women, the aged, children, thrown astray and harrassed on the roads of exile and of distress."
Although the Church opposes war, said the cardinal, "it is not against the defence of right."
"Made Known His Wish."
It always supported those who legitimately defended their country and it blessed only the sword of those who used it for order, justice and true peace. . . . His Holiness Plus XII has made known to the world where go the inclinations of his heart, his wishes and his prayers and toward which flags his benedictions are projected.
"All people have sinned, we have all sinned. That does not prevent that at this moment, in the heart of divided humanity, Hitler represents the felony, the irreligion and the very organization of evil, and that those whom he had made his victims or whom he intends to attack, symbolize righteousness, the fidelity to God and to country, the strength of order and moral good."
"Commands Prayer for Allies."
The cardinal added, "he and his proclaim that they want nothing less than to dominate the whole world, to crush life and history, to destroy even the souvenirs of Christian institutions."
"And if we think that a Hitlerian victory in Europe will be for us the menace, perhaps soon, of the most grave ruptures, of the most disastrous uprootings, of the annihilations of religious, cultural and social traditions, . . . how would it be conceivable that there be found among us . . . Christians and patriots deformed enough to pronounce themselves unconcerned in regard to the actual conflict in Europe."
"I declare with conviction that wisdom and Christian charity, the most right and noble patriotism, religion itself commands us to pray

Their Majesties Visit Canadians At Aldershot

The King and Queen, Arriving on Surprise Visit, Highly Impressed by the Splendid Appearance and Efficiency of the Entire Division.

By EDWIN JOHNSON,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.
ALDERSHOT, June 9. — The officers and other ranks of Canada's First Division will long cherish the memory of Saturday, June 8—the day their democratic King and Queen came to see them at work.
Devoid of Formality.
It was a surprise visit devoid of fanfare and formality and gave Their Majesties a closeup glimpse of Canada's hardy sons, now trained to the hilt.
Both had previously paid official visits to inspect the vanguard of the Canadian Active Service Force. But this was the first time they came together to see the men from the Dominion.
They remained in the camp for nearly five hours and left highly impressed by the splendid appearance and efficiency of the entire division.
From the time the King and Queen were welcomed at the camp boundary by Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, general officer commanding the C.A.S.F., they moved amid a scene of constant activity.
Men in Shirt-Sleeves.
They motored for miles through country resembling the actual theater of war and they saw an imposing array of modern armament. They strolled through lanes of cheering Canucks and frequently stopped to chat with sun-tanned, perspiring men in shirt-sleeves.
They did not miss a single activity that was going on and they had a look at every unit that was on routine jobs or informally lined up, awaiting the royal visitors.
The Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry was drawn up on a three-sided square and Their Majesties walked along the ranks, talking to many men of the famous unit. Its officers wore field service dress caps of dark green with French-grey piping.
Had Motorcycle Escort.
At the Corunna barracks the royal pair were piped into the building by a pipe band of the 48th Highlanders of Toronto. They stopped there for tea and it was the only place that the Royal Standard was broken out.
An escort of eight motorcyclists from the First Provost Company accompanied the King and Queen on their tour.
The first visit was to the Toronto Scottish of which the Queen is colonel-in-chief. Lieutenant Colonel D. C. Thompson, wearing steel helmet and with his gas-mask at the ready, was putting his men through an advance machine-gun scheme, preparing for a mock action.

At the close of their tour the King and Queen remarked on the smartness and efficiency of the men and their healthy appearance.
The King wore a field marshal's uniform. The Queen wore a costume of "Regina blue"—a name given to a particular shade of blue after the royal visit to the Saskatchewan capital last summer. Her hat was of the same color and she carried a pearl-grey parasol. A diamond maple leaf clasp was pinned to her coat.
Troops Battleworthy.
Major-General McNaughton said afterwards that the King noticed the progress the Canadians had made in their steady training.
"It was my privilege to say to His Majesty that our troops now are battleworthy and that I have no doubt as to the outcome of the bitter struggle on which we are now embarked," General McNaughton said.
General McNaughton, accompanied by Colonel G. R. Turner, general staff officer (first grade), Colonel E. W. Sansom, assistant adjutant and quartermaster-general, and other members of the divisional staff, met Their Majesties upon their arrival.

Car Hits Truck, Two Men Injured

Two Ottawa men were injured when their motor car collided with the rear of a truck on the Aylmer road, near Deschênes, at 9.15 p.m. on Saturday. Jack Parker, 36, of 834 Bank street, was injured about the elbow and forearm and is believed to have four ribs fractured. Robert F. Hay, 28, of 457 Sunnyside avenue suffered a head cut which required seven stitches.
The car driven by Hay was travelling towards Hull. It is believed that the driver's attention was momentarily attracted by burning house which had been struck by lightning a short time before. When attempting to pass a truck driven by Roland Levesque, 20, of St. Guertin street, Hull, Hay failed to see the rear of the vehicle and crashed into the right hand corner. The car shot ahead and landed in the ditch. One door was pulled off and the top practically torn away. Remi Levesque, father of the truck driver, was in the cab. Both escaped injury.
Hay and Parker were taken by passing motorists to the office of Dr. H. P. Hudson, in Aylmer, and later removed to the Ottawa General Hospital, Water street. Their condition is not serious. Traffic Inspector Rene Menard investigated with Traffic Officers L. Carriere and N. Sullivan.
